

2023 INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

HELLO FROM PIEPER VETERINARY

At Pieper, education is important—and we believe that when veterinarians collaborate, we strengthen the veterinary profession. Given our pedigree of evolving vision, steadfast commitment to excellence, and attentive community stewardship, we designed the internship program to reflect our values through advancement of the next generation of doctors.

Our primary focus is making the internship program a genuinely meaningful experience, so we've worked hard to listen to our alumni and exact real change. Our interns enjoy:

- More primary case responsibility
- A stipend that represents a competitive living wage
- A 5-day work week that ensures ample rest

Our approach is centered on the power of lasting mentorship, exposure to a diverse caseload, and guaranteed protected time for didactic learning. We strive to emphasize the value of all team members, and we invest heavily in helping each intern achieve their goals.

Approximately 60% of our interns go on to complete additional specialty internships or residencies, while the remaining 40% choose to serve in ER services or primary care. However, thanks to our varied opportunities for employment and our commitment to positive relationships with our employees, we are proud to report that many alumni remain on-staff post internship, or joyfully return as specialists after completing their residency training elsewhere.

We appreciate your interest in our internship program, and look forward to meeting you soon!

WHAT YOU'LL DO AT PIEPER

In Our Specialty Departments

Internal Medicine

A variety of complex cases are managed in-hospital and by appointment. Interns enjoy a comprehensive, multimodal approach to diagnosing, intervening, and chronic care while being exposed to management strategies. They also perform procedures such as endoscopy, bronchoscopy, colonoscopy, and rhinoscopy.

Neurology & Neurosurgery

As one of the most highly regarded neurology services in New England, we have a large caseload of surgical and medical patients. Under the guidance of three boarded specialists, interns hone their neuroanatomic diagnoses while gaining experience in complex neurosurgical procedures.

Diagnostic Imaging

We provide ultrasound, radiography, fluoroscopy, and CT support for both Pieper hospitals and our referring veterinary community. Working with a boarded radiologist, this caseload allows interns to solidify their diagnostic interpretation skills while learning more about advanced diagnostics.

Emergency Care

Certified by VECCS as a Level I Emergency & Critical Care Facility, our ER is open 24/7 and sees a high caseload. Overseen by 3-4 staff doctors per day, rotating interns get the opportunity for primary case responsibility while having the support of senior staff doctors.

Resuscitation & Critical Care

Providing in-hospital care for our most critical patients, RACC takes transfers directly from the ER and supports the specialty teams with dynamic cases. Under our board-certified criticalist and support team, interns utilize modalities such as mechanical ventilation, telemetry, and high-flow nasal oxygen.

Surgery

Two boarded surgeons, two residents, and two specialty interns manage a high-volume caseload of soft tissue and orthopedic procedures. Interns gain primary surgical experience through emergency surgeries as well as within the Primary Care department.

Oncology

Overseeing a wide variety of cases, this department works closely with our surgical and imaging teams. With the support of two boarded oncologists and technical staff, interns gain valuable experience in diagnosing cancers and selecting the best treatment method for each patient while tracking progress and outcomes.

Avian & Exotics

We treat a broad variety of species on both emergency and primary care bases. Interns practice primary case responsibility for medical and surgical cases in various animal taxa, with supervision provided by a board-certified specialist.

Primary Care

Attending to the needs of our patients for almost a century, the Primary Care department offers experiences with animals at all life stages. Under the supervision of staff doctors, interns gain expertise in wellness and preventative care, surgery, and diagnostics and treatments.
